SECTION I | LETTER FROM THE SECRETARIAT

Greetings Delegates!

On behalf of the Secretariat, we are thrilled to welcome you to the 1st Edition of the HIS Global Conclave. This event promises to be an enriching experience that will leave a lasting impression. The Conclave aims to showcase your creativity, diplomacy, and problem-solving skills as you engage in discussions around global challenges.

This is not just a simulation, but a unique gathering of bright minds from diverse backgrounds, tackling pressing issues with a focus on the Sustainable Development Goals. Our six esteemed committees are designed to address problems not commonly explored in other MUNs, and we eagerly anticipate your innovative solutions.

Beyond debates, the Conclave offers a platform to display your public-speaking, networking, and leadership skills while experiencing the richness of cultures from around the world. Active participation is key to making your committee a success and truly embracing the spirit of being a "MUNner."

We at HIS appreciate the enthusiasm students bring to international diplomacy, and we have worked diligently to ensure a seamless experience for all. Your involvement is the first step toward shaping the next generation of world leaders.

We can't wait to meet you all on November 15th for what promises to be productive and engaging discussions!

Warm regards,

Akhil Gokul

Secretary-General

Rehan Saied

Deputy Secretary General

SECTION II | LETTER FROM THE EXECUTIVE BOARD

Dear Journalists,

We are delighted to welcome you to the International Press Corps at HIS Global Conclave 2024. It is a pleasure to be directing this committee and we look forward to seeing you make a profound impact through the power of words.

You must already know that journalism is one of the prime facets of the contemporary world. It is a medium of expression that is based on verification and critique. The International Press is at the epitome of modern journalism, partaking in the analysis and appraisal of United Nations proceedings.

As reporters mirroring those from the International Press Corps, you must abide by the highest standards of prudence and transparency. The IPC is a particularly holistic committee, honing your speaking, writing and debate skills. However, we aim not only at testing these but also your creativity and multi-tasking skills, leaving you more finessed and fostering your growth.

We recommend that you research thoroughly to efficiently create irreproachable pieces of work. Ensure that you avoid erroneous information and fallacious arguments while staying bold, diplomatic and eloquent.

We extend our best wishes to you!

Sincerely,

Varsha Shree V (Chairperson of IPC)

Keshav Rajesh (Vice Chairperson of IPC)

SECTION III | ABOUT THE COMMITTEE

Founded in 1948, The United Nations Correspondents Association, or UNCA, is a collective of reporters that work tirelessly to accurately display the events that take place among United Nations members and committees. The UNCA, which is currently run by over 200 members from dozens of countries, is an essential part of international politics in the modern world. It provides a direct link between the United Nations and the public while critical decisions about the future are being made.

As a member of the International Press Corps, you will be asked to report on the events of HIS Global Conclave in the same manner as the UNCA reports on the United Nations. Instead of debating issues and representing nations or individuals, you will take on the role of journalists from global news organizations and will be addressed accordingly as "journalists" or "reporters" rather than "delegates". You will be assigned to certain committees and tasked with covering developments within the committees, organizing and attending press conferences, writing articles, and interviewing delegates. This is a particularly holistic committee as it sharpens your public speaking, writing, and debate skills.

The press is a cornerstone of democracy, offering a platform for diverse perspectives to be shared. Its most important function is that it keeps the decision-makers in line, and holds them accountable for all their actions and decisions. We, the executive board for this committee, expect due diligence, honesty and exemplary integrity with every submission.

SECTION IV | GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

Notes:

- Reporters must have a notepad or an appropriate device to take notes of verbatim, speeches and other material in the flow of the committee.

→ Deadlines:

- Deadlines are strict and will only be adjusted for valid reasons.
- Submissions after the deadline will not be accepted.
- A submission will only be considered if all previous submissions have been made.

→ Grammar:

- Reporters are expected to review their reports multiple times before submission.
- Usage of the built-in spell-check and punctuation guides is permitted.
- Usage of paraphrasing AI is not permitted

→ Date format:

- Day Month Year
- E.g., 2 November 2011, 5 September 1987
- Do not use suffixes (like 'st' or 'th') for the date.

→ Plagiarism:

- Plagiarism is strictly prohibited.
- All submissions must be the reporter's own work.
- Usage of paraphrasing AI is prohibited.

- Usage of ChatGPT or any other generative AI is strictly prohibited and will lead to immediate disqualification.

→Numbering format:

- The numbers 1 to 10 must be written in words
- Multiples of 10 from 1 to 90 must be written in words
- Any other numbers greater than 10 must be written in numerical form.
- This numbering format does not apply to percentages or decimals.
- Example: She wanted to buy 37 pencils for 20 rupees each but ended up buying fifty at a 25.67% discount for 11 rupees each.

→Acronyms and abbreviations:

- Acronyms and abbreviations must be introduced the first time they are used, and must be used without the full form thereon.
- Unofficial acronyms or abbreviations are not allowed.
- E.g., Pressure is building on the People's Republic of China (China) in the Disarmament and International Security Committee (DISEC). China is facing constant allegations by Western powers and will have to prove itself during this DISEC session.
- Contractions, such as "shouldn't" or "wouldn't", are not allowed and must be replaced with their expanded forms, such as "could not" or "would not".

→Credits and Citation:

- Credits must be given where due.
- Any online material cited must be linked at the end of the submission document as part of the bibliography.

→Images:

- Images, such as photographs of committee, statistics and even caricatures may be included in your reports.
- These also have to be credited like so: [CREDITS: <https://www.mygov.in/>]

→Italics:

- Important words may be italicised.
 - Sources and names of cited written works must also be italicised in the body.
 - Do not italicise more than a phrase at a time.

War. War in itself is a despicable gamble of human lives for petty quarrels between those who sit at the top. But, even in war, many more acts go unseen and unheard. Acts which are considered disgraceful even between those who are warring. Acts which, if when exposed to light, would surely make even the most optimistic of us more than just wince. The country that does so is considered the worst of the worst, and little more than trash. The example we take here is Japan in World War 2(WW2).

Other points to note:

- Always write articles in the third-person. Refrain from using first-person.
 - You should not use the actual names of delegates or representatives in your articles. Instead, refer to them as "Delegate of" or "Representative of," followed by their portfolio. When mentioning the same delegate in the next sentence or later in the paragraph, capitalise the first letter of "Delegate" or "Representative." E.g., The Delegate of the Republic of India elaborated on the benefits of military de-escalation in war-ridden regions. The Delegate mentioned some measures to implement the same.
 - Avoid using profanity or offensive language in your submissions, even if the delegate or representative being documented did the same. Ensure that you convey the meaning of the words used without the use of such language.
 - Parliamentary procedures (such as "committee decided to hold an unmoderated caucus") must be excluded from your submissions. Only the essence of the discussions should be conveyed.

SECTION VI | SUBMISSIONS [Deadlines yet to announced]

1. Op-Ed:

An Op-ed (short for "opinionated editorial") is an article typically featured in a newspaper's editorial section. Generally written by experts in a particular field, it offers the writer's personal viewpoint, analysis, or insights on a specific topic within a larger context. While the piece reflects individual opinions, it should be backed by reliable facts. The tone can be somewhat creative, but the article should maintain a level of seriousness and substance, providing meaningful commentary on the topic. This article must be between 650 and 800 words long.

2. Beat:

A Beat-based article, or simply a "Beat," is a focused report that analyzes a specific element of committee debate. Reporters are expected to closely observe discussions on different parts of the agenda, as the article's content must be drawn solely from the committee's proceedings. Although a Beat captures delegates' statements, it is distinct from meeting minutes; simply listing "who said what" is insufficient. Furthermore, the Beat should be free from personal opinions. For this task, reporters are expected to carefully choose relevant information, structure it in a logical or chronological order, and provide insights that link the delegates' positions in a balanced and engaging way. The article should be 300 to 400 words long.

3. Feature:

Unleash your creativity! Whether it's through poems, stories, haikus, or diary entries, the possibilities are endless. You have the flexibility to choose your format—just ensure your piece is typed and stays true to the given theme. Let your imagination take the lead! There is no word limit for this submission.

4. Timeline:

A chronological overview of significant events that took place in the committee. You are permitted to use design and other software tools to enhance the visual presentation of the submission. The report must include at least six key events. The word limit for this is 200-250 words.

5. Interview:

This article provides an opportunity to ask questions to a delegate or a group of delegates, but it should not be mistaken for a press conference. The questions must be clear, concise, and approved by the Executive Board of the International Press. The article can be written either in a Q&A format or as a report. Reporters are responsible for accurately capturing the essence of the delegates' responses. The word limit for this article is 600 words.

5. Press Conference:

During the conference, you may notice inconsistencies in the representatives' speeches or need clarification on certain statements. This is your chance to raise those issues. Reporters are expected to maintain diplomatic decorum and refrain from using offensive language. If the questions are based on research, it is the reporter's responsibility to provide supporting evidence.
